

Dear Michael and the Bobbyard team,

I have spent the last six months at ESC Partners as the first AI hire, owning Maya AI from vision to launch in 2.5 months. Maya is an autonomous, event-driven agent platform on Oracle CCS for a 200K-resident utility: voice, chat, SMS, email, and mobile, executing billing, payment, and outage transactions without a person having to step in. No handoffs. I wrote the FastAPI handlers, designed the Bedrock prompts, shipped the React supervisor cockpit, and built the Microsoft Teams adaptive-card approval flow. Live at NEP. Rolling out at Moreno Valley Electrical. Piloting at Delta Utilities.

The "founder operates the roadmap, ships the thing, lives in customer workflows" framing in your JD is the only way I have ever worked. Before ESC, I was sole PM on Vollie's 0-to-1 voice AI coaching platform: first paying client, seed milestone. Before that, I bootstrapped CloudApproach and Approachables across UK and MENA. Two ventures, $575K combined exit, 95% post-acquisition retention, $5M+ in deals influenced on a $200K marketing budget, 200+ agency clients, 80+ real-estate partners. Founder mentality is not the right phrase. Founder operating mode is.

Bobbyard is the bet I want to be on next. Construction estimators doing three-day takeoffs by hand is structurally the same pattern as utility supervisors digging through Oracle CCS for every customer query: a manual expert workflow that AI should compress to minutes. I have not shipped CV on construction drawings. I have shipped intent classification, RAG, multi-channel agents, and a supervisor cockpit with one-click human takeover. Same product muscle, different model class. Dangerous in 30 days is a promise I have kept before.

Available immediately. Open to relocating to San Francisco within 30 days of offer.
